

Assoc. Prof. Dr. Başak Yavcan

Başak Yavcan is a Senior Researcher at the Hugo Observatory of Environment Migration and Politics, University of Liège and an Associate Professor of Political Science and International Relations at TOBB University of Economics and Technology in Turkey, where she heads an interdisciplinary graduate program on Migration Studies. She holds a PhD from the University of Pittsburgh, Department of Political Science, has conducted research at Michigan University's Interuniversity Consortium for Political and Social Research, at New York University and at the Northwestern University Buffett Institute's Keyman Modern Turkish Studies.

Yavcan's research focuses on inter-group relations and public opinion, in particular regarding refugee integration, impact of immigration attitudes on Euroscepticism, immigrant acculturation attitudes and the impact of media framing on the public opinion. Lately, she has been working on the integration of Syrian refugees in Turkey, with a particular focus on inter-group attitudes, institutional trust, Islamic radicalization, effectiveness of local and national policies and interventions on promoting cohesion. At Hugo Observatory, she works on the Structural and Environmental Determinants of Migratory Crises. Yavcan has conducted field research in various countries as part of national and international grant schemes, using both quantitative and qualitative methods including surveys, experiments, focus groups, in-depth interviews and content analyses and her resulting work has been published in a number of journals, books and international policy reports.